Discussion on proposed restated and amended regulations – Greeves

Joanie Aufderheide spoke about the many unauthorized snowmobile “ghost trails” on both AIA land and private parcels. A discussion was held regarding approved use of AIA land and how it is addressed in the regulations.

Owners Doug & Mary Cockes and Lucia Lebon spoke in opposition to a change in Design Review regulations that would increase storage shed size to a maximum 500 square feet. They also expressed their opinion that the proposed regulation change was progressing to a vote in a non-transparent fashion.

A discussion was held whether square footage or proposed use of an accessory structure was to be the determining factor as to identification of it as a garage.

Lebon identified the issue as not one of lot development but of lot use. It is her opinion the increasing RV and camping use of lots is detrimental to the future of Arrowhead in relation to real estate values and community dynamics. The future of Arrowhead as a “mixed use” community is something she believes needs to be addressed.

Owner Pat Amie discussed his support for RV and camping use of lots from a business standpoint. The seasonal RV and camping lot owners are the major source of business for the Arrowhead Mountain Lodge, and it is his opinion that those owners, while paying the same annual dues as homeowners, are not treated fairly.

Norwood shared a collection of owner correspondence received regarding the proposed changes regarding storage shed size, and a proposal for a wood shed of a maximum 250 square feet. He responded to each shared question or complaint with an explanation of the Board’s reasoning for the proposed changes, and the process thus far utilized to seek input and provide an opportunity for owner input.

Although outreach had been made via notice printed on AIA dues statements and posted on the AIA website throughout the two-year review process, little interest had been showed by owners. However, a suggestion to give notice by US Mail to each owner was made by Lebon. Doug Cockes offered to pay for postage up to $1000.

Discussion was held regarding notice to owners via US Mail and the scheduling of special meetings to allow further owner input (dates to be determined and included in the mailing). J. With was to work with Greeves on the language and organization of meetings.

ADJOURMENT: Vote - adjourn meeting: Motion by Bloss and seconded by Norwood. Unanimously approved. The Special Meeting was adjourned at 3:35pm.
